INSANE HOSPITAL INQUIRY.

A Candid Coal Dealer Opens Some Carbonaceous Mysteries—He Says Men as Well as Coal.

The insane asylum investigation was continued last night. Mr. Olds resigned as chairman of the committee, and was succeeded by Mr. Foster. George K. Sutton sworn. Is a painter, John Thomas, nephew, and Charles Everts, son of Dr. Everts, painted on the asylum. Francis Pigg was a painter. Worked at the asylum last summer. Was discharged because he voted the democratic ticket last fall, the Saturday night preceding election day. Thomas, Fields and Everts frequently left of painting to play croquet.

George F. Miller testified. Was bookkeeper for Fawcett and Connolly, dealers in coal and lime from 1870 to 1872. They sold large quantities of block coal to the asylum. Coal at that time was worth 16 cents a bushel retail. It was sold to Dr. Jameson in 825, 1870, for 11 cents a bushel. He received $25,000 for the coal. The balance of $3,700 due from Dr. Jameson at the end of the year was ordered canceled by Mr. Connolly. Coal was never sold by the firm to anybody else (paid for by the firm). Other consumers were paying for the coal at the time. John E. Fawcett, had lived in this country since 1864. Was in coal business from August, 1864, to March, 1874, with the exception of fifteen months. Furnished coal to insane asylum almost every year. He was connected with Dr. Jameson. Had no acquaintance with Dr. Everts. Knew him, but did not consider as an acquaintance a man who would not speak to me on the street. We bid pretty close order to get asylum trade. It was in 1871 and 1872 that the asylum commenced cutting our accounts. One account they cut down $304 and another $390, when we quit. The coal was weighed when it left the mine and delivered from the asylum switch. The asylum folks weighed it again. Mr. Cropper, attorney for prosecution wanted witness to state reason for the cuts.

Witness—I can't say I know of any reason. We always considered the coal as paid for. The chairman and committee told the witness to go ahead and work.

Witness—Can't say just what cuts were for. Can't say that any money went to Dr. Jameson or Dr. Everts. At one time Mr. Connolly talked about it and said that it was a pretty good thing to be on the board of asylum trustees. I was in the business to make money. When I could buy a man I would do so.

Mr. Connolly used a good deal of money, but I don't know whether it went to either of these men.

The charging candor of the old-ventral coal merchant and the evident relief which he undertook the work of proving himself the Joey Bagstock of the fuel trade and devilish was a refreshing revelation to the committee. They gazed on the witness admiringly and encouragingly. The chairman said the committee thought the witness should tell all he knew. To which Mr. Fawcett replied that they could not put him in if they chose, but he didn't propose to tell. He said he knew where most of the money went, but there was no power could make him tell.

Mr. Smith, counsel for Dr. Jameson—Did you not ask Mr. Connolly, now living in Paris, Illinois, to testify that he had given presents to Dr. Jameson, as you owed Dr. Jameson a grudge for the part he took in the machine investigation and it was a good time to get even with him.

Witness—No, sir; I said nothing to that effect.

After some skirmishing to get at the witness, the fact appeared to be of the cuttle fish kind, that the committee had been penetrating the dirty water into which he had scuttled, when he acknowledged that he did not give Dr. Jameson any money, and that his personal knowledge he never saw his partner, Mr. Connolly, give either Dr. Everts or Dr. Jameson a cent of money in his life.

The chairman—Do you know of any one who does know?

Witness—No living man but Connolly knows. We kept things pretty close. Of course we used money in our business, and bought where we could buy the cheapest. That is what we bought anybody that was for sale. I did not purchase from Dr. Jameson and Everts. The books will show something.

The books of the firm were here produced by Mr. Miller, bookkeeper, who showed the asylum account for 1872. Fawcett continued: Here is $312.19 paid to Dr. Jameson as account as merchandise. We never bought any merchandise of the asylum. In the same year, in July, another account is settled by $21.99 in merchandise, and in April, 1873, a similar entry is made in which the amount is $370.50.

These were balances which they refused to pay, and the books were finally balanced by making these entries as settled by merchant. Here is $312.19 paid to Dr. Jameson and Everts—Was it not the fact that they claimed you did not deliver coal to the amount which you charged them?

Witness—That's what they put it.

Mr. Hubbard, of the committee, wanted to know what the money was used for by buying men as well as coal, to which, with an air of inviolable secrecy, witness answered that the firm had many entries on their books they did not want to say anything about. The committee then adjourned until evening.

Amusements.

The first presentation of H. M. S. Pinafore at the Grand Opera house last night, by Dickson's Pinafore comic opera company, passed off delightfully, and was listened to by a crowded audience. Where a place has been so lauded as has been this sparkling opera it is almost certain to disappoint on the first night, but Pinafore seems to be an exception. While the applause showed close attention and keen appreciation it was not particularly pronounced until the play had well progressed, when the audience became more enthusiastic, and several encore were given by the company. Pinafore is free from impurity in libretto and story, there is nothing "broad" in dress or suggestion, the music is to the point, and the acting is of the highest quality. The company is a fine one, and the play is a masterpiece of the art. The company is a fine one, and the play is a masterpiece of the art.
